

My home is a place of refuge. It is where I take my meals, counsel my children, pray to my God and make love to my wife. I really, really, object to and fervently oppose and change which would weaken the New Jersey Do Not Call List law. I am not simply a marketing object but rather a human being and as such deeply resent the lack of respect for such that is shown by business people and their allies in government.